

Anaheim High School Hall of Fame – Class of 2010

Larry Quille – Class of 1930: After surviving imprisonment as a World War II prisoner of war, Quille served his alma mater for 27 years as an English and journalism teacher, leading his students to produce award-winning school newspapers and yearbooks. In 1976, Quille received the Gold Key Award, the highest prize available to high school journalism teachers given by Columbia University judges. The same year, Anaheim High School's newspaper, the "Anoranco," placed third in the national contest.

The father of two Anaheim High graduates, "Mr. Q," as he was affectionately called by his students, was also an enthusiastic supporter of Anaheim High athletic programs and produced numerous game programs and other publications that documented Anaheim's rich history and traditions. His quest for excellence was an inspiration to his students and influenced their lives and future careers.

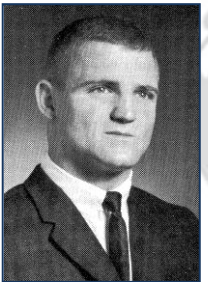

Senator Ross Johnson – Class of 1957: A Republican United States political figure who most recently served as chairperson of the California Fair Political Practices Commission, Johnson was a long-time California State Legislator and the first person ever to serve as a party leader in both houses of the legislature.

Johnson represented Orange County in the California State Legislature for 26 years. He served in the California State Assembly from 1978 to 1995 and the California State Senate from 1995 to 2004. During his tenure in the Legislature, he authored several bills to tighten campaign finance laws and provide more public disclosure of campaign contributions.

In 1988, Johnson authored the first ballot proposition approved by California voters to impose limits on campaign contributions. A true "local boy makes good" Johnson, who lived in North Orange County for numerous years before retiring to Northern California, earned a Juris Doctorate degree from Western State University College of Law and a Bachelor of Arts degree from California State University, Fullerton.

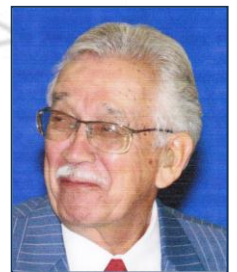

Ron Davini – Class of 1965: A former player with the Chicago White Sox, Ron's outstanding high school baseball career earned him a scholarship to Arizona State, where he played on the university's National Championship team in 1967 as catcher. He earned the awards of "College Player of the Year" and "Most Valuable Player" in the College World Series, placing him in the Baseball Hall of Fame, college section, in Cooperstown, New York.

For the past 34 years, Davini has been teaching and coaching in the Tempe Union High School District. Throughout his career, Ron has been involved with many professional organizations supporting the game of baseball and currently serves as executive director of the National High School Baseball Coaches Association. Among his many accolades, Ron was selected by Walt Disney Productions as one of the top 60 teachers in America.

E.M. "Speed" Castillo: A long-time educator whose two children graduated from AHS, Speed is the most recognized referee in Orange County sports history. Since 1959, he has officiated thousands of high school football and basketball games and was named the California Coaches Association's Official of the Year for his contributions of time, service and dedication to the coaching profession and athletics.

An outstanding high school and college basketball player and track athlete, Speed also served as Orange County's first liaison to CIF officials for all sports and was an administrator with the Anaheim Union High School District for 33 years. Speed earned his master's degree from Arizona State University and is a veteran of the U.S. Air Force, serving in the Korean War and with the Strategic Air Command.

Bob Hasenjaeger: A loyal Colonist up until his passing on Jan. 27, 2010, Bob was known as the "Voice of the Colonists" for his tireless behind-the-scenes work for numerous Anaheim coaches. He served as a dedicated volunteer for 28 years, announcing football, basketball and baseball games. His support of Anaheim High and its students was unwavering and his friendship was a benefit to all who knew him. His voice and presence at Colonist games will be sorely missed.
